

SENATE GOES ON RECORD IN FAVOR OF PRESIDENT

TABLE GORE RESOLUTION BY BIG VOTE

MOTION BY SENATOR JAMES CARBRIED 68 TO 18 AND DISPOSES OF ARMED SHIP TANGLE.

GAG RULE CRY RAISED

Republicans Protest at Methods Used to Gain Endorsement of Administration Policy in Submarine Warfare.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, March 3.—By a vote of 68 to 14, a greater majority than they expected, administration forces in the senate today tabled the Gore resolution to warn Americans off armed ships of European belligerents, and thereby quelled in the senate an agitation which embarrassed President Wilson in submarine negotiations with Germany.

Senator Gore's resolution, a substitute for Senator Chamberlain's and an attempt by Senator Gore to strengthen his original proposal, was defeated at one time on a roll call on a motion by Senator James, one of the administration whips, to table them. The administration victory in the senate transferred the fight to the house.

Senator Gore himself voted to table the resolution. Senators Chamberlain and O'Gorman were not present to vote against the administration. The other twelve anti-administration votes were republicans. Forty-seven democrats and twenty-one republicans composed the ayes.

It was said at the White House that the result in the senate was satisfactory and met the wishes of President Wilson. It was added that attention would now be concentrated on the situation in the house.

Meets President's Wishes. It was necessary then for senators to express themselves as to warning, and the administration victory was secured on an unwelcome merchantman as a cause for war in one vote.

For that reason Senator Gore voted to table it, because he did not favor his own substitute and he merely introduced it to get an expression of the senate on this issue.

The text of Senator Gore's addition to his original resolution and which was tabled was as follows:

"Resolved by the senate, the house of representatives concurring, that the secretary of the navy be and he is authorized to order any merchant vessel of her public enemy resulting in the death of a citizen of the United States, would constitute a just and sufficient cause of war between the United States and the German empire."

Several senators explained that the double form of the question was resorted to by the administration in the question regarding a cause for war.

House Leaders at Work. While the senate was voting, house leaders were working. There was no doubt that the administration victory in the senate was expected to solidify the sentiment in the house, and the leaders looked for some favorable development during the day.

President Wilson, after he had conferred with Acting Chairman Poincaré of the rules committee, determined to have a vote in the house even if a special rule containing a resolution were required to get it.

Insistence that a vote be taken by rules committee action if necessary, came after varying reports as to stand of the foreign affairs committee. As Chairman Flood reported the hope that a satisfactory resolution would be drawn today and reported when committee met this afternoon.

President Wilson's position on the submarine situation was revealed today, when he said that he had told congressional leaders that he was months after the resignation of former Secretary Bryan before the United States government could convince Germany that this state was in earnest in its position on submarine warfare.

GERMANS PERIL LATIN AMERICA, CHARGE

The charge has been made before the senate foreign relations committee that the Germans, before the war, secretly violated the Monroe doctrine by gaining a foothold in the following places in the Western hemisphere: (1)—Haiti; (2)—the Danish island of St. Thomas; (3)—Nicaragua; (4)—Columbia; (5)—Paraguay; (6)—Chile.

to a strict accountability. "We denounce Germany because we do not like her system of government, nor her militarism," he said. "We took the same attitude and reached the same result by the same process as the highest German legislative body if directed by the Kaiser from the throne. Suppose the president had said to Representative Poincaré: 'You will proceed immediately to secure some scheme to stifle debate and then take the vote on my resolution, so that I may have the view of the house. What would have been the expression of this country? There would have been immediate condemnation so severe and so general that there would have been another change of views.'"

Lansing Informs Bernstorff. Senator Lansing, it is said, told the German ambassador today that in the event of the United States might be obliged to break off diplomatic relations. The ambassador is reliably represented as having replied that he fully understood the wishes of the secretary and to have added the hope that nothing of the kind would ever occur.

The ambassador pointed out that with diplomatic relations severed there would be no agency by which the enthusiasm of naval commanders could be held in check and that some circumstance was almost certain to occur to lead to hostilities.

The ambassador also reported as having pointed out that the modification of the conduct of submarine warfare made since the beginning of the war had been solely on account of regard for the wishes of the United States.

The authority from whom this information was obtained said it should be understood that the ambassador was only expressing his personal opinion, and that the conversation with Lansing was absolutely informal and not to be regarded as significant of anything.

Sees War Ahead. "We are approaching the issue of peace of war," declared Senator Sherman, republican, who voted against the resolution. "Ultimately the war the executive is traveling leads but to one close. It will end in war or national abandonment and humiliation."

BILL TO AID POLAND BEFORE THE SENATE

Senator Hitchcock Introduces Bill for U. S. to Give Two Million to Sufferers.

Washington, March 3.—A bill to appropriate $2,000,000 for the relief of inhabitants of Poland was introduced today by Senator Hitchcock. The bill would have the president obtain an agreement of belligerent governments to guarantee distribution of supplies among the suffering people of Poland.

The bill also would authorize the president to employ any vessel of the navy to transport the provisions.

Defense Bills Ready. Congress will have before it within the next few days, possibly tomorrow, the first of the national defense measures. The house committee reached a final agreement late yesterday on its bill for an increase in the army and the senate committee plans to take a final vote on its bill today.

The house bill as finally approved, calls for an increase of the army to a total peace strength of approximately 700,000. This would include 170,000 regulars, 425,000 national guardsmen and about 100,000 federal volunteers.

IS GERMAN RAIDER WAITING A CHANCE TO REACH NORFOLK?

Liner Sights Mysterious Lights Off Virginia Coast—May be Raider Seeking Refuge.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, March 3.—A report that a German commerce raider or prize was lurking off Cape Henry, Va., was given a favorable chance to make a dash for Newport News, or Norfolk, was brought here today by Captain Mankewitz of the Bullfinch liner Grayson, here, from Porto Rico.

On January 23, Captain Mankewitz said when he was practically in the same position, several white lights were observed to the east. It was a few days later that the Appam took refuge in Hampton roads.

Captain Mankewitz said heavy weather and clouds prevailed off the Virginia coast and he was satisfied the vessel whose lights he had seen, were trying to keep their movements secret. He felt sure the lights did not belong to British cruisers as the patrol ships make no secret of their movements.

ASK H. S. LOVEJOY TO DEFENSE MEETING

Navy League Seeks Janesville Man to Head Delegation at Gathering at Washington.

Henry S. Lovejoy of this city has been asked by the Navy League of the United States to head a delegation to its national defense convention, which is to be held at Washington, April 10 to 13, inclusive, according to an announcement made today at the national headquarters of the league in Washington. Leading members of the league in every section of the United States are now making plans to attend the convention and to participate in its sessions. The letter sent by the league to Mr. Lovejoy asking for his cooperation points out that the plan now being developed will make this convention a civilian post-graduate course in national defense. In part the letter follows:

"The nation's greatest experts on fighting ships and fighting men—on naval strategy, on naval administration, on relations on marshaling finance and industry, will speak. It is intended that the wisdom of the nation here shall be drawn together that it may be made the basis for action at this time of great emergency."

The convention is to be held in the new Willard hotel. Most of the fourth day, April 13, will be spent on a visit to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. Facilities will be afforded the delegates to see the classes at work in the great school where naval officers are trained.

Tells of Being Buried Alive During the Battle of Verdun

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, March 3.—The story of the three French sappers, who were buried alive for hours, during the battle of Verdun and who finally dug their way out to safety, is told in detail by one of the survivors, who arrived in a hospital train this morning. He said: "With my friends, Bernard and Jean, I was posted in a trench at the edge of the Vaucouleurs woods. The enemy showed a disposition to attack, and according to orders, the three of us, with a charge of powder, fuses and tools, started down a mine gallery to fill it. We did this without difficulty, and were on our way back, when a heavy explosion shook us. Had our mine gone off ahead of us, it would have killed us. One of my comrades, Jean, said one of my comrades, Bernard, rushed forward. The gallery was full of gravel. We realized the horrible truth; we were buried in. An enemy shell had exploded above the gallery, causing the roof to fall in."

"We examined the walls in feverish haste. 'We are done for,' said Jean. 'We were not afraid of death—it was part of the game, but we did not like to die here.' The darkness of the gallery was a terrible thing. 'How long can we stay here?' Jean asked again. 'There is plenty of air and the gallery is roomy, but there is nothing to eat or drink. Wait, what the good of a few hours more or less, he said. 'Why wait? I for one have already made up my mind.' He took out his revolver, but stopped him. 'Wait a while. We may hit on some way out.'"

"Wait for Mine to Explode. 'The first horror having passed over us, we began to discuss ways and means. Let's wait patiently for our mine to explode. If it makes a big enough hole, we can dig through into the next gallery.'"

TWO DEAD IN WRECK AT ALBANY, NEW YORK

Rear End Collision in New York Central Yards Results Fatally for Express Messengers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Albany, N. Y., March 3.—Two men are known to be dead, a third fatally injured and two others seriously hurt, in a rear end collision in the North Albany yards of the New York Central railroad here this morning. The dead and injured men were express messengers, as was one of the missing men. The fifth is believed to have been a tramp. A heavy east-bound freight struck a train which was loaded with express mail, and was waiting to enter the Albany station, smashing a steel coach in which the express messengers were riding, a refrigerator car, and a load of heavy automobile parts.

A third train, also loaded with express and westbound, crashed into the wreckage, throwing debris in all directions.

Compell Attackers to Retire at Vezux Leaving a Great Number of Dead.—Bombardment Keeps Up in Woerve.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, March 3.—German troops cleared the village of Douaumont and pushed their lines to the west and south of the village and of the armored fort yesterday, according to an official announcement. The statement adds more than 1,000 prisoners were taken and also a number of heavy guns were captured.

The statement relates that German armor dropped bombs in the vicinity of the main Verdun forts, and that to the east of Douaumont Lieutenant Emmelman shot down a British biplane, the ninth aeroplane accounted for by Emmelman.

French Statement. Paris, March 3.—Bombardments and attacks on the part of German troops continued all yesterday evening in the region north of Verdun, according to an official announcement. This fighting was conducted with redoubled violence. Near Douaumont several fruitless endeavors on the part of the Germans were repulsed with cruel losses for them. Nevertheless the Germans succeeded in reaching the village of Douaumont, where the fighting continues with ferocity. The village of Vezux also was attacked by German troops, but their advances were checked by French fire, and the Germans were compelled to retire leaving a great number of dead.

The bombardment continued with great intensity yesterday and last night in the Woerve district, but French forces held the Germans in check by the curfew of fire.

The artillery of the Germans has been active in the vicinity of Malancourt, near Haucourt. Slav Advance Successful. Petrograd, March 3.—The Russian advance in Asia Minor radiating along three main lines from Erzerum toward Trebizond, Civas and Bitlis, is meeting with equal success in all three directions. As there has been no serious Turkish resistance since the fall of Erzerum, however, there is little to record, except the continued forward sweep of the Russian armies retarded, and about to report from the front, only by the rugged country and the severity of the weather.

SPORTS

AMERICAN FOOTBALL TOO ROUGH FOR JAPS

Description of Spirited Football Game Enough to Convince Japanese It Is Not For Them.

New York, March 3.—While football is popular in Japan, the association game, and not the intercollegiate form of the sport, is what interests the athletes of the land of Nippon. There are a large number of Japanese who have been graduated from either English or American colleges and returned to the land of their birth, so that both soccer and American football are familiar games. When it comes to indulging in the sport, however, the association contest is the one that finds favor.

To some extent this is due to the fact that during their student days abroad the Japanese played this form of football in preference to the rugby of England, or the intercollegiate game of the American universities. The latter sport is, however, highly prized by Japanese who have seen games in the United States. A visitor of prominence from the Orient who has returned to Japan is also reported comparing the American spirit shown in football play to that of the same spirit of old Japan.

In his judgment the game of intercollegiate football as played by American universities is one of the surest signs of American greatness. In a recent lecture he referred to the sport as follows:

"If any Japanese thinks that the spirit of old Japan, Yamato Damashi, (Japanese spirit) is superior to the spirit of America, (American Damashi) he would have to have changed if he could see a hard fought contest on an American college gridiron. The spirit of the old samurai is not confined to Japan, but is evident in the games between American football teams."

He then gave a detailed and vivid description of the game as he saw it; the stoicism of the injured players, who knocked unconscious, bloodied noses, wind knocked out, and the matter-of-fact spirit in which all the hard knocks were taken by the players.

"That game," he remarked, "would never thrive in Japan."

Soccer in China.

In China soccer is also growing in popularity. Two of President Yuan Shih-kai's sons, Yuan Kuo-chuan and Yuan Kuo-chi, are enthusiastic football players, and members of a team recently organized at the palace which at present is playing a series of games with teams from the Peking club. Yuan Kuo-chuan is President Yuan Shih-kai's fifth son, and Yuan Kuo-chi is his seventh son. The older is about twenty and the other twenty years younger. Both have been at school for several years in England, where they acquired their first training in football.

Poor Old Honus.

Although Honus Wagner is one of the oldest of the active professional baseball club, having just celebrated his forty-second birthday, he is still making records. With three other members of the Pittsburgh team he claims to be the first to start training for the 1916 season. Late last month, during a thaw spell, Wagner and outfielder Hildie, pitcher Maxbauer, and manager Callahan at the club office. The spring-like weather caused the talk to turn toward baseball play and the upshot was that the four were shipped out to Forest field and indulged in a short session in batting and throwing. Wagner states that this is the earliest date that he has ever begun training in his many years in the big leagues.

J. H. S. TO BATTLE UNIVERSITY HIGHS

High Basketball Five in Last Home Game Tonight—Congregationalists Play Methodists.

Tonight will be the last chance the high school basketball supporters will have to see the Blue and White five in a game on the local floor. They will run up against the University Highs from Madison in a return game, and the high school expect to repeat what they did to this team two weeks ago in a game with them at the Capital City. Coach Keck has been sending the regulars through stiff drills every night this week, and now every member of the team except Lee is in good condition. Lee is suffering with a sprained knee and Viney will be used in his place tonight.

The Madison reports state that the University high five will have a "come back" for Janesville. They also still believe that the walkway game at Madison two weeks ago was just a fluke on Janesville's part. The J. H. S. battlers will show them what real luck is tonight and will give the University boys a good drubbing. Following are the lineups that will be used tonight:

University Highs: Feldman, lg; O'Shea, rf; Robeson, c; Allen, rg; Langerman, lg.

J. H. S.: Cushing, c; Kober, rf; Richards, lg; Viney, rg; Cronin, lg; Kakuske, Kenning and Dick Cushing, substitutes.

DOPE DON'T LOOK GOOD FOR PHILLIES TO REPEAT VICTORY

Pat Moran Loses Out When He Falls to get Couple Fed Stars—Has His Old "Standbys" However.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Philadelphia, March 3.—Full of hope for the 1916 campaign, though the fans are somewhat doubtful—Pat Moran and his Champion Phillies to lead the pennant at Spring training. It is their first flag in so many years that they count 'em by decades and the Clan Moran enters the strife determined to repeat the pennant-winning performance of Grover Alexander and his noble cohorts.

Moran suffered reverses in the Show-Season maneuvers. He wanted to pluck Rousch and Geddon out of the Federal League grab bag, but he didn't get them and the soft-spoken Gael had to revise his plans in mid-stream. However, the pennant-winning performance of Grover Alexander and his noble cohorts.

One of Moran's hopes is to develop something of stellar luminosity from out the array of recruits and second-string men on hand. This he believes can be accomplished soon after the regular season gets under way, when the youngsters have had the benefit of a training trip and a few bangs in the big time.

Who will fill the outfit and under positions when the season opens is problematical. Expected shakeups probably will mark the exit of more than one player. This already has been evidenced by the release of Deas Becker, veteran outfielder. This release showed that Moran has great confidence that Good or Devore will be valuable addition to the team.

The Lakota have beaten their regulars in this game and should win. Tonight an aggregation of players are to meet at Stoughton, and a hard game is expected with that team on their floor under the strict rules which they play. ### LAKOTAS IN FROLIC AT RINK LAST NIGHT

Party Said to be Most Successful of Its Kind Given in History of the Club.

Eccentric skaters in dilapidated costumes, totalling over one hundred, last evening held sway in a riot of fun at the Rink at the Hard Times skating party given by the Lakota club. Fifty-six members of the club and their lady partners were present. Originally planned as a combined party of skating and dancing, the dancing program was abandoned for the roller carnival, which continued without interruption from 7:30 until 1:00 a. m.

Miss Loretta Connell and Phelps L. Lee were awarded the prizes for the best skaters. Louis McCarthy was adjudged the best costumed gentleman, and Miss Korman, the most humorously dressed lady. In the three-lap skating race Roger G. Cunningham won a neck and neck spurt with William Eickmann and was presented with a grand championship medal made of bronzed tin and artistically embellished with India ink printing. Two other contestants, Clarence Green and Harold Jones were entered in the spurt, but Cunningham's lead despite the strenuous efforts of Eickmann to take the honors. Members of the married men's basketball team, their appearance at the opening of the high school starts in their prime, bowed, 10 to 6, to the single men's five. George Calow, Walter, Carl, Edward Leary, George Semmet and Dr. Stewart Richards composed the losing aggregation. John Brown, Ben W. Kellow, William McDonald, Phelps Lee, George Sherman and Floyd Kilmer represented the younger clubmen.

Their appearance at the opening of the game and during the first half was a sensation. Over his gym suit each member had a bright colored and starched skirt, giving the players the appearance of circus lady bareback riders.

Members of the committee in charge of the affair, George Sherman, Louis Brown and Owen Skavien, are to be congratulated on the success of the evening. The Lakota club also is indebted to Manager George Caldwell of the Lakota Cardinals' basketball team, who donated the use of the auditorium for the evening.

Officials of the American Federation of Labor are endeavoring to form a baseball players' league. They have written to Rogers Bresnahan, ex-manager of the Cubs, to ascertain his ideas on the subject. The ball players, it is argued, are not well organized at the present time. Their fraternity, headed by David Fultz, is held by those back of the movement, has not received much recognition from the magnates, and a new union, backed by the American Federation of Labor, is figured a good thing for the diamond profession. The fraternity had one rebuff when the Philadelphia Athletics, almost to a man, held out, saying that they had plenty of faith in Connie Mack and his fairness. They did this when world champions.

The New York Yankees, with some sixty ball players on their hands, are busy arranging working agreements with minor league clubs. A part of Ed Donovec's surplus will be sent to Richmond, some to Newark and some to Memphis.

Billy Southworth is a holdout. He's not satisfied with terms offered him by the Portland Pacific Coast club and may stay out of the game this season.

The University of Minnesota boasts of an athlete who has not only distinguished himself upon Northrup field, but has won fame in the far east, says the Minneapolis Journal. Wendell Pan, just elected to the captaincy of the Minnesota soccer football team, bears the distinction of being one of the greatest athletes of the orient. Pan attracted the attention of sport followers the world over three years ago when he won the pentathlon in the all eastern Olympic games at Manila, P. I. In these games he competed against the leading athletes of China, Japan, the Malay archipelago, and the Philippines.

Conie Mack has signed Walter White, a pitcher of the Tufts college team, who will report after school closes in June. He is a right-hander. It is reported his pitching mate on the Tufts team, Krepps, also joins the Athletics after the college closes.

Through the efforts of conservation Warden William E. Mason and officers and leaders of the Rock County Rod and Gun club, it is proposed to increase substantially the membership of the club this spring in order that the various interests of the club toward conserving and propagating game in this section of the state may be furthered.

The banquet, which was held at the Y. M. C. A. building on Wednesday evening, is regarded as an indicator of the co-operation which may be expected from sportsmen in all parts of the county. The members of the committee which had charge of the arrangements for the banquet, W. E. Mason, H. W. McNamara, R. Wortendyke, Harry Nowlan, Will Taylor, F. B. Green and W. E. Lawler, are enthusiastic over the response and feel that the first big gathering of the club was a decided success. It will serve as an impetus to the membership campaign as many who attended signed application blanks which are in the hands of Secretary R. J. Bear.

Not only will the hunters and fishermen be enlisted in the ranks of the Rod and Gun club on the side of game conservation, but the farmers and business men of the county who see the wisdom of preserving wild life will be solicited. Plans to purchase wild fowls to be raised in the county under the protection of the club will be carried out with as much dispatch as possible.

The success of the Rock county club has attracted favorable attention throughout the state. Since its success from its inception has been large, due to the enthusiasm and untiring zeal of Conservation Warden Mason, it is probable that he will be drafted into the service of the state conservation commission for a period to aid in the establishing of similar clubs in other localities of the state.

It is a wise precaution to stop the skating on the down town business streets, but in the residence sections it should be allowed. It is possible that those who have complained of the practice have forgotten their own childhood days or failed to remember that conditions have changed and that the average young American of today is more of an out-of-doors being than in the past.

Parents should, however, caution their youthful charges not to annoy pedestrians and not to make too much noise in the vicinity of homes where sickness exists. Otherwise let them enjoy their exercise and become strong men and women, physically as well as mentally.

DIPLOMATIC SOMERSAULTS.

On February 18th Sen. Mrs. Lodge and Sterling addressed the senate on this subject, citing the authorities and quoting Mr. Wilson's various official declarations on the subject. Senator Sterling charged that "the German admiralty was encouraged if not invited by the memoranda of the state department" to adopt a policy which "involves consequences more serious than any that have yet disturbed us, grave as some of them have been." Immediately following this exposure of its reckless inconsistency, the administration turned a somersault, reversed its position and caused it to become known that it would not agree to Germany's plan. From Germany have come explicit if not actually official declarations that the German admiralty is determined to pursue the course it had outlined, that it regards the change of face of the United States as distinctly unfriendly, and that it will neither defer its orders to German submarine commanders nor engage in delaying negotiations with this country. Apparently, this country, therefore, faces the alternative of a humiliating backdown or a severing of diplomatic relations with Germany, with possibly much graver consequences.

TRUE DEMOCRACY.

Attention was called recently to President Wilson's reckless pardoning of two Oklahoma officials convicted of fraud in trying to deprive the negro of that state of their right to vote, under the infamous "grandfather clause" of the state constitution, a pardon issued immediately after the supreme court had affirmed the guilt of the men and which was accepted as designed to encourage the state legislature to devise some other means of depriving the colored voters of the suffrage. Now come reports from Oklahoma that when the legislature immediately undertook to devise such legislation and that during the vote in the Oklahoma house of representatives there occurred a free fight in which Arthur H. Geissler, republican state chairman, was knocked insensible and others injured. Reports from Oklahoma indicate that, with confidence that the courts cannot punish them as long as Mr. Wilson retains the pardoning power there is no limit to which the Oklahoma democrats will not go in their determination to keep the colored voters from the polls.

Intense indignation was felt at the increase of income taxation by people with incomes of $2,999 and under. When they learned that the present exemption of $3,000 would not be lowered, they decided to bear it with Spartan fortitude.

The European nations went to war to get more territory to accommodate their population, and they are accomplishing the same result by killing off their population to fit their territory.

They are talking of government ownership of railroads in Cuba. It should be a success, as they can already borrow money without having interest or principal charged up.

In spite of the fact that money is called "easy," these cold and heartless bankers still decline to make any loans on the basis of a man's next week's pay.

The pension expenditure is decreasing, but congress is patriotically on guard at Washington to protect the treasury from the dangers of having a surplus.

All of the scholarships in the St. Louis high school graduating classes have been won by girls, who thus persistently refuse to remain in woman's sphere.

TO BUY PHEASANTS FOR GAME PRESERVE

Rod and Gun Club Will Purchase Forty Nine Birds Next Week— Trout Fry to Arrive on Monday.

Forty pheasants will be purchased by the Rod and Gun club by a committee consisting of F. E. Green, William A. Green and J. F. Worthen. The pheasants will be of the beautiful game birds, Wallace Evans, at St. Charles, Ill. Twenty pairs will be bought at six dollars per pair and will be kept in the preserve to cost $180 to be paid for by the amount appropriated at a recent meeting of the club.

President F. E. Green will go to St. Charles some time next week to purchase the birds and see that they are properly shipped to this city. They will be placed in an orchard, fenced in, on the preserve of the club north of the city. By this method there is better chance for propagation and the pheasants are fully protected from malicious hunters. Eggs will be distributed among the club members, to be hatched by hens, under a contract agreement that when the birds are fully grown they will be released in the uplands of the county.

On Monday, the 14th, the club will receive their shipment of broods and fry to be placed in the spring streams of the county where the trout will have good opportunities of growing and increasing. Thirty thousand of the fry is expected to take shipment. Part of the fry will be liberated in a spring brook near Fulton, others in a stream near Evansville, and several thousand will be placed in the headwater of the three mile creek, a brook near Footville will also receive some of the trout fry.

Great care has to be used in picking the streams for trout fry for if the water is not favorable to the fry the small fry will all perish. The water has to be cold spring water, clear from muddy sediment, and with enough food to allow the trout to thrive.

PENS ARE RECOVERED FROM BOY BY POLICE

An eight year old boy, "Jimmy," stood before the chief of police, his father and several men in the chief's office this morning with tears in eyes and sobbing. It was a case of "when a fellow needs a friend." Jimmy vainly tried to remember how it came that he was distributing four and five dollar fountain pens among pedestrians last evening in the vicinity of the postoffice.

In playing around the postoffice steps, Jimmy looked at a juvenile wonder when the employe of the Parker Pen company came over to the postoffice with his cart loaded full of mysterious pens and packages. When the Parker Pen clerk went inside the postoffice for a few minutes, after unlocking the car, Jimmy wanted to satisfy his curiosity and his inquisitive hands dived into the cart and extracted two of the "mystery packages." He found no need of lingering around, so Jimmy ducked around the building and opened the wonderful package. Low and behold, there were seven black pens, with real gold pens all wrapped in shiny paper and sealed.

Visions of the pretty little school girl loomed up before Jimmy and he decided one of the pens would make a most presentable present, even though it was rather late for a Christmas gift. Maybe it was her birthday. Anyway Jimmy presented the schoolgirl with a four dollar pen and decided that others should share his fortune. The pen and the schoolgirl were stopped and Jimmy presented them with pens, and strange to say neither of them refused or offered to pay the lad for his strange and unusual present.

The police this morning called Jimmy and his father to the station and for the first time the lad fully realized that he had done something wrong. Four of the pens were recovered and a police officer was sent out to recover the other three pens.

Kidney Disease Cured

The kidneys act as guardians and eliminators to the blood. They separate the poisonous elements from the blood and eliminate them in the urine. A diminution of their function will result in an abnormal condition of the blood. Uremia, convulsive seizures, vomiting, blindness, paralysis, disturbances of the heart and respiratory function, pain in the back, etc., are due to kidney insufficiency. The healthy kidney removes poisonous substances from the blood. Diseased kidneys throw poisonous substances into the blood, thus irritating the vital and motor centers.

The Lik and Rest Treatment will cure diseases including tuberculosis of the kidney.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME . . .

Copyright 1915 by Frank H. Spearman.

Rhineland made up his mind not to protest; a jump was not to his taste, but Sykes, the big fellow, did not hesitate. The train was crossing the San Pablo. Sykes leaped from the step into the river, Dan reluctantly following suit.

Helen, through an open window of the smoker, saw Sykes' jump. She caught the conductor's arm and begged him to stop the train. He pulled the cord and, with the conductor and brakeman after her, Helen ran to the front platform. The train slowed. In the river, Sykes and Dan were swimming. Helen made ready to drop off. The conductor and brakeman tried to dissuade her; they could not.

"You'll have to go alone. I can't leave this train," shouted the conductor to her.

Helen only waved her hand as she dropped to the ground.

Luckily, she had not been seen by the men she was after, but a further obstacle threatened. The convicts had swum to the nearest bank and were now across the river from Helen. A passing boat was awaiting the draw, and the moment the train passed the jackknife had been started up by the bridge tender. Helen was running to get to the other side before it was too late. Sykes and Dan, ashore, were hurrying away, and the ponderous jackknife was rising under Helen's fleeing feet. The draw span, already high in the air, made a widening gap between her and the abutment, but Helen, running to the rising end, jumped from it recklessly to the abutment below. She landed, bruised, on the track, but she picked herself up and sped on after the fugitives.

The river bridge is at no great distance from Occasville, but Helen's breath was pretty well exhausted before Sykes and Dan reached a suburban street car and boarded it. So close was she after them that she gained one platform just as the two men stepped up on the other. Concealing herself behind a seat, Helen hid in terror, but with all their astuteness the criminals failed to discover her. When the two left the car in the city, Helen was again relentlessly on their heels. Following them vigilantly she intercepted an officer, told him of her chase, and he instantly joined her in the pursuit of the men, now disappearing in the distance.

Turning into an obscure street, the criminals entered a doorway and started up a long flight of stairs, Helen with her policeman hard behind. Looking back from the first landing, the convicts now saw their pursuers. Springing up a second flight of stairs, they knocked hurriedly at the first door. It was opened by their confederate, The Bat, who, inside the room, had been diverting himself by counting the stolen money.

"They're after us," exclaimed Sykes to him. "We've got to get out of here. Beat it, Bat. The girl and the cop are on the stairs."

"Make for the roof," cried the Bat. The hard-pressed pair ran for the trap ladder. The Bat, keeping to his room, slammed the door shut. Once through the trap door, which Sykes and Dan dropped behind them, and on the roof, the pair imagined themselves safe, but Helen and her officer were close behind, and when they found the trap door closed against them the officer drew his revolver and fired up through it.

On the outside, Sykes and Dan jumped back like rabbits from the shots. Helen and her helper threw open the trap unopposed, and, gaining the roof, faced the convicts. No where could the robbers find an avenue of escape on the top of the building, and cornered, like rats as Helen and the policeman reached them, they put up a hand-to-hand fight.

The officer tackled Sykes, the more powerful of the pair, and Dan, seeing his opportunity for a flank movement, tried to regain the trap door. Helen pounced on him like a panther. He tried to throw her off. Despite his blows and struggles, he could not get rid of his tenacious assailant, and locked in a life-and-death struggle, they fought, reckless of consequence, nearer and nearer to the edge of the roof. For a moment both their lives were in peril, but Helen, her fighting blood up, would have clung to her prisoner if it had cost her life.

Provisionally, the barred man, fast losing his nerve under her frantic attack, and pushing to the edge of the parapet in the wild assault, flung Helen violently off in an effort to throw her over the roof parapet to her death. In his terrific effort he lost his balance. With a scream he tried to recover his foothold. Helen, seeing his desperate plight, would have caught him to save his life, but fortunately for herself, she could not reach him in time. Had she done so, her own death would have been inevitable for Dan, swaying wildly, slipped again. He caught with a fearful curse at the empty air. It was too late for anyone to aid him now, and the next instant he had plunged headlong off the roof to his death.

Helen turned to the officer, who, in a grapple with Sykes, was fighting in the grasp of the powerful criminal, to save himself from being hurled through an adjoining skylight.

WRITERS OF VISITS THROUGH OLD CITY

F. F. Lewis Tells of St. Augustine and Its Wonders and Beauties.

F. F. Lewis, under the date of February 24, writes from St. Augustine, Florida, of the wonders of this wonderful old Spanish city. His letter is as follows:

For something more than a week Mr. Lewis and I have been rambling in and out among the quaint and narrow streets of the old St. Augustine. These streets are so strangely and yet familiarly mixed up with the new and modern conceptions of such things it keeps one guessing in wonder as to the next surprise he may meet.

It may sound common place for us to say we have been shown the oldest house in the United States, the oldest church, the Spanish cathedral, the oldest court house, jail, school house and the oldest fort.

It would not be true were we to give the impression that these are isolated structures that have by some special care been preserved beyond their fellows. There are whole rows of buildings of this kind, and the atmosphere of another civilization. Located on the plaza is the oldest postoffice building, formerly the residence of the governor general under the Spanish crown. The plaza is the oldest slave mart where shipload after shipload of negroes from the wilds of Africa were sold at auction to the highest bidder. These buildings being made of cement and built in one of such buildings but a block distant from this hotel. The most interesting building of this character, "Coquina" construction, is the old fort. It is a natural rock quarried from the deposits of the sea, stand in many cases as stable and true as when first built. The home of the Spanish crown in St. Augustine is in one of such buildings but a block distant from this hotel. The most interesting building of this character, "Coquina" construction, is the old fort. It is a natural rock quarried from the deposits of the sea, stand in many cases as stable and true as when first built. The home of the Spanish crown in St. Augustine is in one of such buildings but a block distant from this hotel.

The strong contrasts between the old and the new order of things is forcibly set off by the location of these modern magnificent hotels, such as the "Ponce de Leon" and the "Alcazar" with their splendid parklike surroundings of tropical foliage right in the midst of these quaint old Spanish-Moorish type of structures of the first settlement of the country.

Shops, numerous and well supplied to meet the demands likely to be made upon them. They are of much interest to the casual visitor and well calculated to draw upon his purse strings. Our friends, Mr. and Mrs. Bladon, know about this, and we ourselves have been through our pockets to fish for loose change.

Perhaps most visitors find their interests centered in old Fort Marion. Three times has the city of St. Augustine been totally destroyed by the invader and its people have been compelled to take refuge within the walls of the fort. The last time they were so sheltered for three months, during thirty-eight days of which time the enemy made active siege. Imagine the strain upon the occupants, military and refugees, totaling right in the five hundred people—men, women and children, to which mass must be added the livestock, which was also taken into the fort for food supply for an indefinite time, together with food, well for man and beast. The siege was finally raised and the people returned to their ruined homes and once again rebuilt them.

Fort Marion is said to be in all respects a castle built after the plan of those of the middle ages and to be one of the best preserved of the military architecture of this time. It will be viewed with wonder and amazement by increasing numbers our our citizens for an indefinite time. With the care it will likely have it should stand way into the centuries and to come, the lesson likely to be drawn from a visit to its strong and stern presence can but enhance one's appreciation of the blessings of peace and prosperity that have come down to us of this generation through the struggles and sacrifices of the heroes of the past generations.

Peace and prosperity now abound within the shadow of its walls—indeed the grounds of the Country club are adjacent on the west and numerous golfers, men and women, daily drive their elusive balls right up to its boundaries.

We plan to go to Havana next Monday for a few days, after which we turn north again via the Atlantic coast and Washington.

ENGLISH SAILOR MODERN JONAH AS HE WAS ON FOUR SHIPS THAT WERE WRECKED

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, March 3.—Charles Dunn, a sailor, pleaded guilty to the charge of failing to report for duty on an Admiralty transport which sailed with him. Although such an offense in war times, is regarded as a most heinous one, the Liverpool magistrate who heard the case, inflicted no punishment upon him.

Dunn, as was brought out in the evidence, is a modern Jonah. Although he seems to bear a charmed life himself the ships on which he sails almost invariably go to the bottom. He was on the Titanic and the Empress of Ireland when they went down and on the Lusitania and Florizian when they were torpedoed by German submarines. His portrait, as that of the man who couldn't be drowned, has been shown at many of the "movies." Among the sailors of the transport known and his reputation as a Jonah firmly established. He said they threatened to throw him overboard if he joined the ship.

"So you see, your worship," he explained to the magistrate, "if I had sailed on the ship they wouldn't have let me stay on her long. And though my luck might have held good again if they had chucked me overboard, I didn't want to risk another wetting, especially in winter."

Got it I. I. I.

First it's tickle, sneeze; Then it's sneeze, sneeze; And then it's wheeze. You throat is as raw As an underdone ham; You think you will die. And you don't care a bang! There's noise in your head Like Niagara's roar.

From the throbb and the rush You shake and you shiver, Then parbell and grille; One minute a fever.

The next one a chill. You breathe through your ears And you talk through your nose, And acne like the devil From head to your toes.

The world's upside down, And you don't care a rip, For it's caught you, by jing! Just the same darned old GRIP!

Uncle Abner. Every once in a while an explosion tells of the order of things is a devotee of the celluloid collar habit.

A fellow who buys a $2 necktie when he has got a full beard ain't got no call to complain of hard times. There are so many ways of getting to heaven nowadays that there is sure going to be an awful collision if they all try to run into the terminal station at the same time. No man is so much of a failure in life that he doesn't think he is qualified to write in and tell the editor how to run the paper.

There is only one thing that you get so regular in a country hotel as roast beef and brown gravy, and that is roast pork and apple sass. It seems to be human nature to be mighty fond of eggs when they are 50 cents a dozen and to get mighty sick of 'em when they are 15 cents a dozen.

Nobody Satisfied. Things are never just as we would have them. In the city the tired business man lies down to sleep, but an endless procession of little demons are marching through his brain and he just lies there and wishes he was living in some quiet little country town, far away from the turmoil of trade.

How slow that! Over in Pewamaw, a typical rural town, the tired native crawls into bed and closes his eyes. He would like to sleep, but he can't for out there on the four corners of the burz is a windmill, owned by the town. It seems bent upon proving that municipal ownership is a success, for with every breeze of the mill needs oiling, whether the water tank needs replenishing or not, and with every turn of the wheel there is an unearthly sound like the wail of a lost soul. Citizens say the mill needs oiling, but there seems to be official oiler in the place, and so the wheel goes on squeaking and the tired citizens continue cursing and wishing they lived in the city, where windmills are unknown.

It is Not Contagious. A southern Michigan editor fell in a fit on his office floor the other day and when they found him he was in a precious condition, all of which goes to show what comes of sending five back subscriptions and at the same time telling the editor to keep on sending the paper. But then, why worry, it won't happen in this shop—Pewamaw News.

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

AT THE PRINCESS.

Hobart Bosworth Tonight. Hobart Bosworth, famous as a Broadway star and producer of the Universal Broadway feature productions, "Faithful," "Colorado," "A Little Brother of the Rich" and "The Scarlet Sin," is featured in "The White Scar," a five-reel drama of the Canadian woods, which comes to the Princess Theatre tonight.

Ulysses Davis, a former Vitaphone director, produced the play in the Bear Lake Mountains of California. The story is laid in the Hudson Bay country and deals with love, romance and the adventures of Na-Ta-Nan-Gan, which is Indian for "The Great Trapper."

In this character Mr. Bosworth is at his best. In picturesque hunting costume, surrounded by his Indian followers (all of whom are genuine native Indians) he is seen on the trail or in the great birch canoes at the trading post where dwells the factor's lovely daughter, down great rivers, deep in the forest fastnesses or fighting in hand-to-hand combat with a renegade French-Canadian on the edge of an abyss.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Guy Hickman and the original Hickman-Bessey company, which open their week's engagement at the Myers Theatre next Tuesday, March 6, is considered one of the best stock organizations in the west. Mr. Hickman needs no introduction to theatre-goers. This night he will be remembered as the comedian of the Hickman-Bessey company when he and Jack Bessey starred together about five years ago.

Mr. Hickman made his company even stronger than it was and is credited with being the first repertoire manager to produce entirely new plays each season. There will not be a single play produced during this engagement that has ever been played in this city before, and while all of them are plays for which Mr. Hickman pays royalty, most of them were written for his exclusive use.

Miss Virginia Stanton, who is leading woman for Mr. Hickman this season, was with the Davidson Stock of Milwaukee for the greater part of two years and is considered one of the best dressed stock leading women. The leading man this season is Mr. Eugene McDonald, formerly leading man with the Keith Stock at Washington and Providence. Harry Martin, a member of this company, will be remembered for his excellent work as the druggist in "The Fortune Hunter" about four years ago.

The opening play will be a lively farce-comedy entitled "Putting It Over," which was written for Mr. Hickman and played exclusively by this company in the middle west. Ladies free Monday night with each paid 30c ticket if purchased before 6 p. m. Monday.

Not in many years have so many Private left handers toed the scratch in spring trials. Five of them are after baths and three, or perhaps four, must depart with the twenty-one-player limit still in force. They are Wilbur Cooper and Erv Kallikhafer, who might be called veterans; Herb Kelly, under retail after a second season with Atlanta; Philip Slattery, star pitcher of Marshalltown team, Central association, and Harry Moran, the Newark left hander.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

Gilbert M. Anderson has sold his interest in part owner in the film company to G. K. Spoor, one of the partnerships. Mr. Anderson, who is known around the world and back again as Broncho Billy, has made no announcement of his future plans, though many rumors about his future abode are floating about New York, where he now is.

Another late star, Charlie Chaplin, is also in New York. When Chaplin first joined he and Anderson entered into a partnership at a moving picture hall with a dance that was unanimously declared the funniest thing ever seen.

Why don't they put it on the screen for all the Chaplin and Broncho Billy fans to laugh over?

AMERICAN STARS ARE BEST OF PAIRS

When Anna Little learned that Rhea Mitchell was to become a full-fledged American star she hastily planned a warm welcome and a dance. Rhea Mitchell has appropriately been named "Ginger," and she and Anna Lewis were good pals in the days when they worked together. Rhea now feels quite at home among the many players she used to work with who are now at Santa Barbara. Among them are Frank Borzage and Tom Chatterton.

Miss Mitchell will make her first appearance as an American star in "Overalls." No, she doesn't wear 'em, because she is a society girl, but there is a foreman of a construction camp who wears 'em.

FRITZI BRUNETTE MAKES DEBUT SOON

Fritzi Brunette, the emotional actress, makes her initial debut in "Unto Those Who Sin." To be released March 8.

Miss Brunette enacts the role of a poverty-stricken working girl, who, lured by a life of luxury, finds that, after all, gold is gross and that the pleasures of the world are not worth the love of a pure man.

Miss Brunette said to possess one of the most elaborate wardrobes in motion pictures were eight beautiful gowns in this production, and her work will certainly appeal. Her supporting cast is a most excellent one.

His Children Wonder if Townsend Can Restrain His Wife's Extravagance

Adelaide, I had to send the dress back. Otrude's tone expressed real distress.

"What? Not the lovely new party dress?" Adelaide's eyes were wide with astonishment. "What was the matter?"

"I got a telephone call from the firm. There was some mix-up about it, and the goods had to go back. J. C. felt very badly about it. Otrude was determined that the girl should not know that her husband had refused to pay for the dress and other purchases.

"I told her the truth about my feeling about it, and she felt a bad feeling about it. In fact I have said to her, 'I am showing her feeling so plainly.'"

"Then we can't have the party dress. The disappointment of Adelaide's one was visible in her face.

"Oh, well, have the party all right," said Otrude reassuringly.

"But I have nothing I can wear and not disgrace you," said the girl.

"We'll fix something. Come on to my room and we will see what can be altered with the least work."

At six o'clock the girls were brought out and tried on and finally decided that the most appropriate and best about remodeling it.

"The painful scene when Jacob Townsend had forced his wife to do over her purchases to be returned because he could not pay for them, Otrude had not spoken to him since the presence of Adelaide. He was pleasant and affable, and the family it was the more pleasant that the atmosphere was.

OUR OWN MISTAKES.

"Well, there isn't anything to do but wait," said the man in the case to his wife.

The man in the case had made a mistake in looking up a train. He had looked at the Sunday instead of the week-day column in the time table, and the result was that they had arrived in a strange time table, and just too late for the nine o'clock train; in two hours and the next train left.

The wife of the man in the case had herself indignantly on the number of the train. "Wouldn't you have been able to see that you had made a mistake?" said she. "And now I am sorry. There isn't anything to do but wait."

the richest, heaviest beans are selected. This is done by the wonderful new gravity-grading process, and surely and unerringly as if each separate coffee bean were weighed. The result is a coffee in which you get only the richest, uniform flavor, yet it costs you no more than other coffee, where rich flavor has been weakened by poor beans.

Sold at 30c and 35c, in sealed 1-lb. packages. Each grade is the very richest of its kind. Also, the 25c grade, which is steel-cut and richly blended, the world's best 25c coffee.

This is because Sims is made from the creamiest parts of the best selected Northern wheat and the delicate brown particles of barley malt—the two most nourishing and easily digested cereals.

The rich new flavor of Sims has brought back many a jaded morning appetite. It will make your family enjoy breakfast again.

Just say, "SIMS" to your grocer.

SIMS CEREAL COMPANY, Minneapolis, Minn., U. S. A.

But are we really being cheated? How Do You Feel Toward Yourself When You Make a Mistake?

Reverse the situation. Try to remember some occasion when you made a foolish mistake. How did you feel? Philosophical? At peace with yourself? Hardly! You were filled with rage and indignation against yourself, the more poignant in that you had no one to wreak it upon.

Nothing is more uncomfortable than to be angry with one's self. To be so with one we love doth work like madness in the brain. We know, and there are very few people we love more than ourselves. You Didn't Go About Talking To Yourself.

Of course you didn't say anything. Why should you? You wouldn't naturally go around saying to yourself, "I could choke you and all the other things you feel. How insane and futile that would be! As it's a matter between you and yourself, you transact it without words, but that doesn't make your feelings any less poignant.

"Well, then, if that's the way you feel when you make a mistake, why shouldn't it be the way the other party feels?"

And if it is, what right have you to say that he takes his own mistakes calmly?

For either situation is another solution for either situation. Instead of being inwardly angry with yourself and outwardly angry with the other person, why not be philosophical in both cases? Why not just try to make the best of it and make up your mind to do better next time, and permit him the same privilege?

With My Letter Friends.

"When you get your law passed to forbid people telling unpleasant symptoms to their suffering friends," writes a letter friend, "I will help you to see that it is endorsed. About thirty years ago my mother had an attack of the quinsy sore throat, her first and last. On her worst day, a sympathizing caller came. She said she always felt so bad for anyone with quinsy, because it invariably came back each year.

"Another time a friend of ours died from cancer. My mother was in a room with a sharp attack of neuritis, and another one of those who came calling and exclaimed, 'Neuritis, in your shoulder! You poor thing, you know that's just the way poor Mr. So-and-so's dreadful cancer started.

"What can we do about it? Do devote another day to it sometime."

Household Hints

COUGH SYRUP—Take ten cents' worth of horseradish root, slice, cover well with water and boil until all the strength is out of the roots. Strain and add to the juice three lemons sliced and peeled the careful no to get any seeds in syrup, for one will make it bitter. Sweeten well, boil until it is a syrup, then strain and bottle and you have an excellent cough syrup which is pleasant to take. Take one or two tablespoonfuls several times a day. It will not make in large quantities, for it will sour. This will make one quart.

THE TABLE.

Mac-o-ree Rocks—One and one-half cups light brown sugar, two-thirds cup butter, three eggs, and one-half cup raisins, two cups well-sifted flour, pinch salt, one teaspoon soda dissolved in tablespoon water, one teaspoon cinnamon, one cup hickorynut meats. Stir drop by spoonfuls in pan, bake slowly.

Parsnip Chips With Sausage—Wash and scrape parsnips, cut them lengthwise in half, then cut into thick, put on to boil with just enough water to cover; boil about eight minutes (do not boil too soft). Now fry in a shallow one-half pound pork sausage, one-half cup sausage, one cup parsnip chips; fry on both sides a golden brown. They are just delicious. The water that parsnips have been boiled in can be used in soup the next day.

Potato Souffle—Two cups hat mashed potatoes, one cup milk, two tablespoons melted butter. Beat egg, add yolks of two eggs and white beaten light. Bake in bake dish twenty minutes.

Pineapple Delight—Cook one cup rice, adding a little salt and pepper. When cooked put in a hot sauce on a platter, set on ice to cool, then over the rice put diced pineapple (without the juice); over the rice and pineapple put a generous amount of whipped cream (sweeten the pineapple and cream, but not the rice).

Marshmallow Tutti Frutti—Whip one pint cream, add half pound marshmallows cut in small pieces; let stand one hour. Just before serving add one cup candied cherries, one cup candied strawberries and ten cents' worth of chopped walnuts. Serve in timbales.

Stuffed Apples With Cream—Nine apples, one cup ground pineapple, one cup ground walnuts, one pint whipped cream sweetened to taste. Remove cores from apples and bake. Arrange each on a lettuce leaf, fill cavities with the pineapple and walnuts ground together. Garnish with whipped cream and serve cold.

Delicious Pudding—One cup suet, chopped fine, one cup raisins, one cup molasses, one cup sweet milk, one cup English walnuts, chopped; one cup dates, two and a half cups flour, one teaspoonful soda; steam two hours.

ALWAYS HAVE HANDY BOTTLE OF AMMONIA

All housekeepers should keep a bottle of liquid ammonia. A few drops of ammonia in water will take off grease from dishes, pans, etc., and does not injure the hands. A spoonful in a quart of warm water for cleaning paint makes the paint look like new. And it is so with everything that needs cleaning.

Spots on towels and hosiery will disappear with the water, having a little ammonia is put into enough water to soak the articles and they are left in it an hour or two before washing. If a cupful is put into the water in which the clothes are soaked, the night before washing the ease with which the articles can be washed and their whiteness and cleanness when dried will be gratifying.

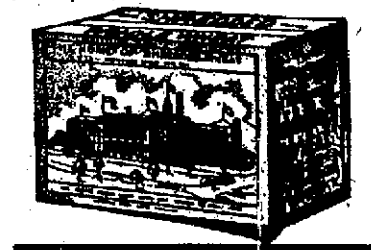

A few drops of ammonia in a little water will brighten colors in a carpet when wiped over with a dampened cloth or sponge.

For cleaning hair brushes put a tablespoonful into the water, having it tepid and dip the brushes up and down until clean, then dry with the bristles down. They will be like new ones.

FLAKY PIE CRUST

To one and one-half cups flour, amount for crust for one pie, add one tablespoon sifted corn meal. Your crust will be amazingly flaky and light.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette

NON-SURGICAL TREATMENT OF GOITRE

At least seventy-five per cent of the cases of exophthalmic goitre are curable by non-surgical measures, declares an eminent Philadelphia diagnostician.

There is of late years a growing tendency to subject patients with exophthalmic goitre to operation. Surgeons claim that less than five per cent of the cases operated on succeed, but a "successful" operation is of course not always a cure of the disease. An operation, too often, is considered a success if the patient leaves the hospital in due time, after what is called an "uneventful recovery."

Some cases of exophthalmic goitre recover spontaneously, without any treatment. Some cases recover after several weeks of intermittent treatment. Some cases recover only after weeks of confinement to bed. And some cases must be subjected to operation as a life-saving measure.

If we had exophthalmic goitre we should sidestep surgery until non-surgical treatment carried out through a period of at least six months proved futile.

Against operation are these considerations:

1. The possibility of post-operative myxedema (due to the want of sufficient thyroid secretion).

2. The mortality rate, which is several times as great as that of appendicitis.

3. The fact that the majority of cases will recover without surgery, if treatment is persisted in for a reasonable length of time.

In favor of operation are these points:

1. The prompt relief of hyperthyroidism, or poisoning by the excessive thyroid secretion.

2. The conservation of the patient's energy—a very important consideration in severe cases.

3. The saving of time. Some patients cannot be operated on, because they can't afford to be idle.

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been keeping company with a nice young lady and until recently I thought I loved her. She loves me so much that I am afraid to let her know that I do not care for her anymore. We have never talked about love because I am not in a position to marry, but I have kissed her and done many things that would give her reason to think I cared a great deal for her. She invites me to her house every Sunday night to supper and I am allowed to call as many times as I wish to during the week.

She was going with another fellow when I started to keep company with her and she cut him out for me. He is married now and I don't think she will be lonely and without company. She is pretty but she doesn't dance or do things that would take her where she could meet people. I don't know just why I don't like her. Her sweetness seems to get on my nerves more than anything else. What shall I do?

K. B.

I myself would prefer to be dropped outright. Another way would be to let the girl gradually realize that you have ceased to care for her. Go to see her less and less frequently and discontinue the little things you used to do to please her. This will give her a chance to see the situation and she can drop her, which might be pleasanter for her than the humiliation of being dropped.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl sixteen years old. There is a boy who goes to my school who is a little older than I am. He wrote letters to me for a while and then he stopped and I still like him, but he doesn't like me. A girl friend of mine sits in front of him and she says "How's may play it three ways and still be well placed—in a pie, a cocktail or on milady's bonnet. All three are ideal settings for a cherry, but naturally the third is the charm. Just as every cloud has a silver lining, so does every smart spring hat have its first fruits and the cherry is the favorite of the bunch. Dame Fortune is masquerading as Pomona in consequence, every peach, topped with a few cherries, goes around looking like a mixed fruit salad. It's quite all right if the peach confuses the cherries that go to her head to the ones on her hat. If she lets the cherries in a cocktail go to her head too she is apt to look more like a compote. See Webster's Unabridged.

"Compote." The shapes of the new hats—cunning little high crowned effects without brims, or the fetching little Directors bonnets, lend themselves very prettily to the cherry habit. Following the cherry, the favorite fruits for hats are green and purple grapes, peaches, plums, strawberries, oranges, lemons and apples for daughters of Eve. Some of the big flat garden hats have an array of fruit around their flat, platelike brims, their vivid colors glowing against a background of glossy green leaves, for all the world like Mike the Dago's pushcart display.

But why scratch the rest of the 57 varieties of the sartorial menu? Sure! If the casual Czarina, Banana, Bonnet or a Pineapple Picture Hat would be tasty little headpieces for the fruitful fashions.

Just to what lengths can fruits go in best answered by the fact that not only do they grow on spring millinery, but on parasols, bags, umbrella handles, neck ruffs, belts, sash ends, jacket lapels, blouses, frocks, negligees and even lingerie are clusters of them grafted.

The new lawns, organdies and spring silks are printed in fruit designs, and even the nearest jeweler preserves the peach, the plum, the cherry and the grape in gold and platinum, in enamel and precious stones.

Verily an up to date peach in a cherry hat and a star of lemon kid gloves according to the current modes, could never be a gooseberry in any crowd. Rather is she the apple of every male eye, with all them plum crazy about her.

Read and use the want ads. They are sure winners.

STAFF OF BUCKINGHAM PALACE RELEASED FOR DUTY.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, March 3.—Almost half of the domestic staff of Buckingham Palace has been released for duty at the front, and the life of the royal family brought down to a simplicity in keeping with times of war. The king still allows no wine at the table, and the meals served are plain and simple as an example in self-denial to the people. Queen Mary, on her part, takes great care to prevent waste. Queen also insists on strict economy in the management of the war-time charities over which she presides. Too often, in peace time, these charities are really extravagant, fashionable fetes in the name of charity. But they are now run on a simple and business-like plan. Other members of the royal family follow the example of the heads of their house. Princess Christian, for example, has no longer a grandiose luncheon at her door, but a parlor maid in blue uniform.

OF COURSE NOT. Blinker—Would you like to live in Europe? Thinker—Well, I certainly wouldn't want to be dead there.

A word to the wise—to those who advertise. Use want ads every day; our word for it, they'll surely pay.

Every piece of clean cloth, large enough for wiping rags and of proper material, free from hooks and buttons, will bring money to you if you deliver at the Gazette.

A New Method of Baking Cakes

Mrs. Nevada Briggs, the baking expert, says:

"There is just one way to make your cakes rise high and evenly—give them time to rise before a crust is formed and the batter is stiffened by cooking."

"If using a gas, gasoline or oil stove, light your oven when you put the cake in and keep the flame low until the cake has doubled in bulk; then increase the heat until it is evenly browned and will respond to the pressure of the finger. If using a coal or wood range, leave the oven door open until the cake is in; then turn on the drafts and by the time the oven is at baking temperature, the cake will have raised sufficiently."

For rich, moist, feathery cakes Mrs. Briggs always recommends

KC BAKING POWDER

It is double acting and sustains the raise. You can open and close the oven door, turn the tin around in the oven or do anything else necessary, without any danger of making the cake fall.

Try your favorite cake next time with K C Baking Powder and see how much higher it will rise. Make it just as you always do, with the same quantity of baking powder. While K C is less expensive than the old fashioned baking powders, it has even greater leavening strength and it is guaranteed pure and healthful.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 24.
Modern commercialism puts putrefactive products into the human body and then by refining them takes away many of the instruments with which nature fights these putrefactive products.

Babies and small children are handicapped if their parents or nurses ignore the meaning of the thyroid gland. Animals cannot live without the thyroid gland under certain conditions, and yet one of the elements necessary to the normal, healthy thyroid in child or adult is deliberately removed from the diet by the doctor. The ordinary grains of the field, barley, rice, wheat, corn and rye, contain normal traces of iodine before they are refined, but there is not a trace of iodine in the refined flour which is a trace of this indispensable food mineral in a ton of refined white bread, biscuits, crackers, cakes, table syrups, cornstarch, tapioca, glucose, or sugar, and in any of the other denatured foods upon which man is now striving to sustain a normal body under such dreadful handicaps.

The food mineral iodine is wasted with many of the other food minerals natural to normal food and it is only through such discoveries as are reported here that the human family can have a hint of the wonderful intricacy and profundity of nature's processes.

The thyroid gland is a protecting policeman on guard in the human body. The young child, the food unnatural to its requirements, possesses no such police protection. It lives in a state of physiological anarchy. Excess meat in the diet affords not only the thyroid but the liver as well.

In the ingenious experiment conducted by Eck a ligature was applied to the portal vein close to the liver, thus cutting off the river from the portal circuit of a dog. It was found that a dog thus treated died in three days when fed upon meat, whereas another when fed upon bread and milk lived in excellent health for an indefinite length of time, notwithstanding the cutting off of its liver functions.

Science showed that the liver has three times as much work to do on a meat diet as on a meatless diet. According to Bryce, flesh foods, at the time they are consumed, contain on an average of 200,000,000 putrefactive bacteria in every gram. But he shows that nature has not left us to the tender mercies of these poisoners. This is proved by the fact that auto-intoxication does not disturb people in normal health, all of whose organs and glands, including the thyroid, either by good food or by the exercise of discretion are normally nourished, thereby enabling them to carry on their normal functioning.

The people of America are consuming more meat than any other nation of the world and whether they know it or not they are consuming meat and meat products that have entered into advanced stages of putrefaction. Frequently they attribute cases of ptomaine poisoning to canned tomatoes, condensed milk, huckleberry pie, cheese sandwiches, and other foods. The real truth is never suspected. In twenty-six months I was able to obtain forty-seven convictions in the courts against meat packers, sausage manufacturers, and wholesale provision merchants for selling deodorized rotten meats and meat products, chemically treated, so as to disguise from the unsuspecting purchaser their true condition.

I have also obtained the removal from office of veterinarians and inspectors in the employ of health departments and of the bureau of animal industry for intriguing with corruption through the assistance given by them to influential by conscienceless meat packers who have not only defied these laws of life in their pursuit of dollars.

The details of these convictions, shocking in the extreme, are a matter of court record. In the meantime, even when the meat is honest, fresh, wholesome, and cut from carcasses of animals that have been raised on infected and diseased pastures, at the time of their slaughter, it requires normal organs to dispose of it properly.

These normal organs require the elements found in nature's food to keep them normal. Modern commercialism helps to put putrefactive products into the human body and then by refining food takes away many of the tools with which nature fights these putrefactive bodies.

The thyroid gland and the many serious diseases which follow a disturbance of its functions help to emphasize the necessity of having every individual, adult or child, of the food minerals which I will soon show you are squandered by modern civilization with a reckless abandon never equaled in any other age.

Spring time is the season of high spirits in nature. Man alone in the spring complains of lassitude. All around him under the action of nature's unobscured law he witnesses the miracle of rising sap, the quickening strength that swells the bud, the impelling energy that forces the spear of grass to push its way upward through the lately plied clay.

Man contrasts his weariness with the power and mastery, the sparkle glow, the warmth and buoyancy of spring. He justly feels that he has green grass in its depths so has he the freshness of nature in his heart. He is just as much a part of nature; nature's law grips him just as tightly in his grasp. He needs his "green" or thinks he does, because he does not follow the laws of life, but closes his eyes upon them and sets up standards of his own. Unhappily his standards are far from heaven, and he pays his price in death.

Those stern mortality records, compiled by the census director at Washington, show that nearly 400,000 children under ten years of age died in the United States every year, force us to realize that as a nation we have been busily building tunnels, subways, railroads, skyscrapers, bridges, aircraft, and Atlantic liners and living in luxury than in developing healthy, normal bodies.

The time has come that we must teach the child that if he wishes to live and grow strong and be useful he must eat the food which God has made necessary to the growth of his body. We shall soon learn how to select that food.

All those who attended the dance at William Kopke's Friday night and at Ed. Churchill's Monday night, report a fine time.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Barrett and daughter, Anna, attended services at St. Paul's Catholic church in Evansville Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Barrett also attended the lecture in the parish hall in the evening.

LOURN HEBEL MAKES GOOD WITH MARINES

Rock County Boy Qualifies As Marksman in Marine Service at Haiti.

In an official bulletin issued by Headquarters, United States Marine Corps, Washington, appears the name of Lourn K. Hebel, of this place, as having qualified as a sharpshooter in that most interesting branch of the Government service.

Lourn, who is a son of Mrs. Minnie Hebel, of Janesville, enlisted in the United States Marine Corps at its Chicago recruiting station on September 13, 1915, and is now serving with the expeditionary force of marines landed in Haiti for the protection of American interests in that war-torn little isle.

Considering the fact that Hebel is scarcely more than a recruit, his performance in gunnery is considered by marine corps officials as little short of marvelous, and they expect him to prove many marksmanship records before his enlistment expires.

ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS BALL AT WHITEHOUSE TONIGHT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Washington, March 3.—Spectacular in a display of magnificent gowns and handsome uniforms, the White House promises a most glittering assemblage tonight when the President and Mrs. Wilson will hold a reception for army and navy officers. Shimmering braid sparkling medals and clanking swords will predominate.

The Army and Navy reception always is welcomed as the most colorful event in White House circles. It has been anticipated by scores of requests for invitations from the young ladies of Washington who are anxious to see and meet Uncle Sam's hand some land and sea officers. For weeks the White House clerks have been besieged from all sources to use their best efforts toward invitations for the event.

But these beseechings have proved futile since the first reception held this winter. Fairly overwhelmed by the crowd which swept into the White House at the Pan-American reception, the President and Mrs. Wilson decided to do much of their own selecting of guests. The President's aides have protested that they were considerably embarrassed when prominent persons requested invitations. The President promptly said he would relieve them. Hence all invitations now pass an Executive Board of Censorship to wit, that of the President and his bride.

As a result this reception tonight promises to be more or less exclusive. There will be the army and navy hosts in large numbers, some favored congressmen and the elite of Washington's society, together with a few hundred perhaps not "so elite."

The President and Mrs. Wilson will be assisted in the receiving line by the wives of cabinet officers. During the reception the Marine band will play and refreshments will be served in the state dining room.

BAMBOO PULP IN INDIA MADE INTO PAPER PULP

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Hongkong, March 3.—Announcements that Sweden has prohibited the export of paper pulp have revived interest in the manufacture of pulp from bamboo, which can be had in unlimited quantities in Tonking and other sections of the Far East tributary to Hongkong. Five years ago a company was organized for the development of the paper industry, and a large tract of land was acquired by a company whose stockholders were originally Hongkong men. The company was a failure, however, and went into liquidation.

Several companies are now organizing in India for the purpose of utilizing bamboo pulp, and the continued rise in the price of paper is encouraging stockholders to take part in these enterprises. In some parts of the east newspapers are paying from fifty to sixty per cent more for printing paper than they were six months ago. Prices have soared very high in Japan, as well as in China and India.

Because of the depressed conditions of business resulting from the war, newspaper publishers are unable to advance their advertising rates, and in most offices the volume of business has decreased. Consequently, publishers in the east are looking eagerly towards any new sources of paper supply.

JOE THE BOOK FARMER MAKING GOOD ON THE LAND

By GARRARD HARRIS.

COPYRIGHT, 1916,
BY HANCOCK & BROTHERS.

"I will see that that is done," said Mr. Weston. "Link has got to put in all his spare time on leaves. He's got a younger brother I think I'll hire just as soon as the leaves are off the trees. I'm going to treat that patch of poor land just beyond yours, Joe. It's so poor it won't hardly grow bitterweed." "Well, you know what to do," said Joe. "Sure I do, and we'll do it." "Think I'll put those two colored boys over home to work on the leaves too," said Tom Ralston. "Major Deau claimed he had to buy so much commercial fertilizer, until there wasn't any more money in farming. He's just farmed that place so long, without giving the soil anything back, that it's wearing out."

"The major sure was a big believer in commercial fertilizer," said Mr. Weston. "Well, I'm going to see if we can't farm with less of it when I have charge, and a good way is to get a year's start now. I'll have a shed built and give orders that every speck of manure about that lot goes under that shed to protect it from the weather. Then this fall it is to be plowed under and kept that program up."

"It will win," said Joe. "Look here, Joe," said Tom. "If you go off to that agricultural school I'm afraid I'll get all mixed up here. I'm just beginning to learn something." "Why don't you go if I do?" suggested Joe. "Your father is able to stand the expense."

"I never thought of it. You'll help me get through with things that are too deep for me yet?" "Sure I will!" assured Joe. "I'll write father this very night!" enthusiastically said Tom Ralston. "Well, where do I come in?" inquired Mr. Weston.

"Oh, I'll write you twice a week of what I learn up there and send you all the bulletins that are of any value to us down here. I can help a heap that way. Now that you can read all right and have got that dictionary to look up any words that bother you, why, you can keep up with us right along."

"I promise I'll study faithfully," said Mr. Weston. "It's going to be powerful lonesome here for me—nobody to talk to about crops and the cattle at night."

"Good chance for you to get on the inside of this canning business of ours and lay plans for helping her next summer. You ain't going to have time to worry about being lonesome!"

"No, I reckon not," mused Mr. Weston. "In fact, I sort of feel scared at the outlook. There's so much to do with all the stock and pigs and keeping the crops going, and you've done a man's share all the time."

"Well, cutting out the truck and the manure crop next year will cut down work. Oh, you'll get through all right."

"Yes, I just got ten," said Mr. Weston. "But, Joe, you don't seem like my little boy. You ain't no has got to be plumb partners in every way. It was through you I got out of that rut I was in and was keepin' you all in, and you've fast gone right ahead, and I've been keepin' up as best I could, but sort of slow witted and shy on education. But I shore will miss you, boy." His eyes were suspiciously moist.

"I'll miss you too, daddy; miss you like fury. And out of all those best farmers in the world I'll see up there, at that school I wouldn't trade one of 'em for my old dad. Hear that?"

Mr. Weston brightened and patted him on the back. "I know it's going to be a big help when you get back, and we'll learn a whole lot more, but all the same"—he shook his head doggedly—"it's going to be powerful lonesome and hard to stand."

CHAPTER XVI.
Joe Raises Record Crop.

THE summer flew by with incredible swiftness. There came, gradually, gently, a soft haze in the atmosphere. The distant hills were enshrouded in purple. In the woods there were a few first yellow leaves on the gum trees. There was crimson on the sumach bushes along the fence rows and a glint of gold in the fields and thickets.

The weather was dry, and a faint touch of coolness in the evenings and the whispering rustle of dying grasses stirred by the breeze gave hints of the fast approaching fall. In the corn fields the leaves on the stalks had withered to dryness, and the ears were bending downward, laden to the full with grain. Thus was seen another wise precaution of Nature to protect the precious kernels. In this way rain and moisture were shed from the ear instead of running down inside and rotting the corn. Every night Joe learned something new as he strolled in his room.

Joe and his father and Tom Ralston made an examination one day in mid-September. They pronounced the grain fully cured and ready to gather.

"Guess we'd better make arrangements to have some witnesses here, hadn't we?" asked Joe.

"Reckon we had. We'll invite Squire Allen to come over and make the affidavits. I'll get Bill Tomlinson and Henry Wilson to come and weigh 'em," checked it," said Mr. Weston. "Well, I'll kill a plow of chickens and have a chicken dinner for 'em. Got your pen-when the wagon was full it was hauled to a new ratproof crib and stored. At 5 o'clock the last ear had been gathered, and the three men retired to the house to add up the totals and reduce the weight to bushels.

Joe went with them and presented his record of expenditures; then returned to the field, where he and Link and Tom and Mr. Weston began gathering up the shucks to be stored for feed and bedding for the cattle in the winter time. After awhile the squire called from the front porch and beckoned Joe to come there. Joe and his father went up, accompanied by Tom, to hear the verdict.

"Well, Joe," said the squire, "we've been over all this mighty careful. Each man has added it and agreed on the total. Each man has divided it into bushels, and our figures tally. Then we went over the expense and figured that out, too, and applied it pro rata per bushel."

"Yes, sir," said Joe, a lump in his throat. "What does it make?" "You've done a plumb recordable thing. You've made two hundred and thirty-three bushels of corn on that acre," announced the squire impressively. "I wouldn't a believed it unless I seen it and weighed it, but that's what it is. The figures are right, and the weights are right."

"That's just bully!" said Joe, with glowing eyes. "I did not think it would run that high."

"Beats anything I ever seen!" exclaimed Tomlinson. "But what about the cost?" inquired Joe anxiously.

"Well, sir, according to the records, you've made this here corn at a cost of 13½ cents a bushel!" "Joe threw his hat in the air and gave a yell of joy, in which he was joined by Tom.

"I would have been tickled to death to have done it on from sixteen to twenty!" he exclaimed. "They can't beat me to save their lives! I've got 'em beat!" "Looks like it to me!" enthused Mr. Weston.

SINCE GREEK PLAY IS OVER BELLOIT STUDENTS NOW GET A HAIR CUT

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Beloit, Wis., March 3.—Barbers of this city were celebrating today. For months the seniors of Beloit college have been allowing their locks to grow in order to "look natural" when the annual Greek play of the institution is given. This event came off on schedule last night when the high-brows of Beloit listened to "Antikones and Sophocles" and the first thing this morning, the seniors made a grand rush on barber shops.

GUERRILLA WARFARE IN NORTHERN RUSSIA HAS A FAR REACHING EFFECT

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Petrograd, March 3.—When the history of Russian guerrilla warfare on the northern front during the past winter is written it will prove a fascinating and remarkable story. Although little has appeared about it in the press, it has accomplished much important results and the General Staff has frequently commended it in the highest terms. The people speak of it as "our little war."

Through the long winter months, when the regular operations are impossible, the Russians have kept at this guerrilla activity with the idea of wearing down the Germans and undermining their morale.

Late last autumn schemes for the conduct of guerrilla warfare were invited from the army, while it was still engaged in the long and steady withdrawal before the German invasion. Every smart young officer hastened to draw up his ideas of the best means of wearing down the enemy. The plan finally adopted was one proposed by a young cavalry officer. His scheme was to encourage officers and men to volunteer for this dangerous service by assuring them of promotion, honors, and money rewards, care being taken to frame the conditions so that only the best men of any rank had a chance of getting into the new branch of service. One of the conditions was that nothing whatever was to be published of the exploits of those chosen, and the only occasion when this rule has been broken was when the author of the scheme, captured two German generals and their whole staff and escort in the Pinsk marshlands. The work has been going on without intermission throughout the winter over the whole northern front. The enemy has never known a quiet night anywhere within fifty miles of his front trenches and in some sections this feeling of threatened security was made to extend a hundred miles into the territory occupied by the Germans. Storehouses were fired, ammunition trains exploded, trains derailed, bridges dynamited, telegraph wires cut, officers and dispatch riders waylaid, villages filled with exhausted sleeping men were attacked or set on fire—this was the kind of exploit that the Russian guerrillas kept up continuously. Its nearest counterpart is found in the guerrilla activity which so harassed the northern troops during the American Civil war, except that the Russian scheme has been far more complete.

The Germans at first sought a remedy in reprisals upon the scanty remaining population of the occupied districts, but after a short time they began to realize that this was a mistake, as it only added to the numbers of their intangible foes.

JAPAN IS RICHER THAN EVER THROUGH THE WAR

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Tokio, March 3.—Never in her history has Japan met with such a period of material prosperity as today. This is entirely due to the war. The Entente Allies have been buying great quantities of war supplies since the beginning of the conflict and more orders are being placed constantly. Money is literally pouring into the country in such quantities that there is actually a plethora of it. Money has become so cheap that bankers have begun to complain.

The first great call upon Japan has been made and will continue to be made by Russia. The exports to Russia have realized several hundred million yen. They include not only military equipment and supplies such as guns, rifles and ammunition, but huge quantities of cloth, many hundred thousands of pairs of boots, leather pouches, caps, sahes, food products and medical supplies. Even rice is exported to Russia to be made into gruel for wounded soldiers and of the medical equipment a notable item is tincture of iodine.

Another great channel in which Japan is finding prosperity is through her shipping. Her big merchant marine is not only transporting supplies for the Entente powers but so far as the Orient is concerned has proved an ally taken over at an immense profit the sea transportation which is held in time of peace by the vessels of Great Britain. Freight charges to all points including the United States have soared and Japanese shipping companies have recently petitioned the department of communications to sanction a further increase in tariffs.

France is at present seeking either to charter or purchase ten or a dozen steamships, but suitable vessels are scarce. The prices are almost limitless in their elevation. The extent to which steamers have risen in value may be instanced by a recent incident at Kobe. The owner of a steamship of the charter for which had just expired who had been receiving about $5,200 a month for his vessel received an offer of charter at the rate of $37,000 per month. This extraordinary demand for hulls is inducing Japanese shipyards to work day and night but they cannot hope to approach the demand.

Forty Years Ago

The Janesville Daily Gazette, March 3, 1876.—A bit passed the assembly yesterday authorizing the common council of this city to fill the excavation on Center avenue.

The Recorder of this afternoon contains the following: Hiram Bowen, ex-postmaster of this city, will start for the Dakota territory tomorrow. He has purchased 480 acres of valuable land about thirty miles northwest of Yankton and proposes to build a residence on it this spring. He has been a long and esteemed resident of Janesville, and will be missed by our people. We wish him a bon voyage to his new field and unlimited success when there.

The fine weather and moderately good sleighing brought out large numbers of teams which thronged the streets today.

It is thought that the young man whom Marshal Keating captured after an exciting chase the day before yesterday, will be discharged, though the evidence can be produced, that he stole forty dollars from one of the stores.

grumbled with a weak voice from deep down in the gorge. Gerry watched his falling level with anxious eye and one day sent an urgent call to Lieber for help.

Lieber came. He brought with him an army, every man bearing with him the tool that had come soonest to his hand. Spades were few and hoes; the bright shares of a pick or two caught the light like lances. Most of the men depended on the heavy sheath knives they carried at their sides. They looked like an army of sansculottes as they swarmed into the ditch and began to dig. In two days they had sunk it to the required level. When they finished Gerry rode back with them to help bring down Lieber's weakening stock.

Kemp had stayed in sole possession at Lieber's. Digging was not in his line, so he had volunteered to hold the fort against the return of the garrison. He welcomed Lieber and Gerry to a supper of his own making in approved cowboy style; sour-dough biscuits made by a master hand, steaks cut from a freshly killed calf and fried before toughness set in, a pile of creamy mashed spuds. There was a homeliness about the meal that made them eat in silence. They felt as though for years they had been worshipping false culinary gods. The pile of steaks, the heaped potatoes, the hot biscuits, were exotic, strayed into a land of pepper sauces and garlic. The supper seemed to the three men to take on a personality and to be fit at ease, but it was they that were ill at ease for the supper reminded them that they were exiles.

The silence on the veranda that night was even longer than usual. Gerry's mind went back to a French book that he had bought in desperation at Pernambuco. He had ploughed through half of it and with a catch in his thoughts he remembered that it lay open on the table when he left his little room in Piranhas on the morning of mornings that had broken life in two. Some of its phrases, couched over and over again in his struggle with the half-forgotten idiom, came back to him. "La parole est du temps, le silence de l'éternité." He smiled to himself at the twisted meaning the long silence of his companions gave to the words.

Then the smile left his face. He remembered the argument. The instinct we all have for superhuman truths tells us that it is dangerous to be silent with those we would keep at a distance, for words pass and are forgotten between men, but silence—active silence—is forever ineffaceable. True life—the moments of life that leave a trace—is made up of silence. Not passive silence; that is but another name for sleep. But the active silence that breaks down barriers, pierces walls and turns the life of every day into a life where all is intense, where there is no ban—nothing forbidden—where laughter dare not enter, where subjection is submerged and where all—all is remembered.

Gerry felt that this active silence had come upon them. These men were being borne into the silent sphere of his own soul. He felt restless—afraid. He decided to speak. He was on the point of speaking when Lieber let down his chair softly, clasped his hands and broke the silence.

"Last night I dreamed I heard the blast of a steamer's horn and when I woke up the cold sweat was on my forehead because I knew that there is no desert, no wilderness, so far from the things you would forget that dreams cannot follow you to it."

He stopped and silence fell upon them again. Lieber stared straight in front of him, out into the night. His face worked as though he were struggling to keep his lips closed. When he began to speak again, the words were scarcely audible. "I don't know why I want to tell you two about why I am here, unless it is that as we sit here so quiet I felt that you knew it all—that you knew all that I know and that I was on the point of knowing all that you have known. The little lies of life suddenly became big and hateful and I saw in my life a monster lie that the silence was exposing."

"There are lots of men with the beginning of my story. It's common and takes little telling. I was born in Pennsylvania. We were mighty poor farmers but I got all the schooling there was within walking distance of home. My old man saw to that. When I was still a boy our little bank took me in. It wasn't doing much business then but a couple of years later the region struck oil and the bank's business soared by leaps and bounds. It turned into as good a sponser as any of the wells. The family that ran it became rich and went to higher jobs or out altogether. The staff was shovled up and about the time I was of age I was handling more money than I'd ever known was in the world. I'd amount I stole was an even thirty thousand and I got away with it. It was easier to do thirty years ago than it is today. I got away with it and then it got away with me. It lasted me a year and four months and I saw the end of it up the coast at Pernambuco.

"I date my birth from the day I spent the last dollar and woke up. I worked. Nothing was too small or too big for me to handle. I got something to risk and then I risked it. I risked it again and again. After ten years I could draw my check for thirty thousand and plus interest and I did. I sent the check to the little bank back home. I waited two months for the answer and then it came; my check torn across and a short letter saying that the loss had already been met by a bankers' surety association. I wrote the association a dozen letters and some of them took some writing. In the last I offered fourfold the theft. There had been plenty of Bible in my bringing up. They wrote back that it was no use—that I could keep on climbing in peace but it was their business to jail me for fifteen years the first chance they got and they'd do it the minute I set foot where they could grab me."

"That letter frightened me. I began to realize that what I'd been working for wasn't money, or honor, or rehabilitation but just the right to go back—the right to go back home."

"Nobody had been harder on me than my old man. For years nobody in the house was allowed to say my name and if he saw a letter from me he threw it in the fire, opened or unopened. But somehow it got to him that I had offered to pay fourfold and that I'd been refused and that turned him. It was the fourfold that did it—the divine and sacred measure of justice. He started to fight for me as hard as he'd ever fought against me. And then he died and my old mother died. Letters stopped. My brothers and sisters were coming up in the world. They couldn't afford to own a thief much less fight for him. So the letters stopped."

"I spent money then. I built me a house in Pernambuco that was a wonder palace and I started in to forget. But when you're remembering with all your might, the color of the paper on the walls of home, the lay of the wood-pane, of the sheds and the tumbling barn and stables, the holes in the fence, the friendly limbs of apple trees and the smell of bay; when you've been coddling bare memories of simple things like those for fifteen years, you can't turn around on your inside self and forget."

"There's a flag the sight of which makes my heart come up into my throat and tears to my eyes. You think I mean the Stars and Stripes, but I don't. I mean the Blue Peter that flies at the halcyons of big ships and says to everybody that takes the trouble to look, 'We sail today.' Over the tops of the houses I've seen that flag blinking in the heavens like a bit of deep blue sea married to a white cloud and to me it always said, 'We sail for home today.' I'd shut my eyes or close the blinds but what was the use of that? Night and day I could hear the bellow of the great horns—a blast for good-by and another for a challenge to the sea—as the big boats headed out for home."

"I couldn't stand it. I came up here. And now, last night, I dreamed that I heard it in my sleep—up here. Gentlemen, a man without a country is in a bad way but a man without a home, even if it's a hovel—well—we all know the old song." He paused to master

"That Letter Frightened Me"

just caught he added, "Home is the anchor of a man's soul. I want to go home."

Lieber stopped talking. The revealing silence had done its work. It had brought them close—so close that he had spoken lest they take his soul by assault. He left them and went to his own room. They saw he was an old man, beyond the years he had disclosed.

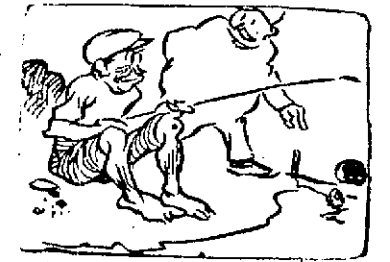

They did not speak. They were nervous. Kemp made a cigarette, puffed at it once or twice and then threw it away, to roll another a moment later. His thoughts were winging away to the fork of Big and Little Creek where a three-room shack stood in the shadow of the White mountains of New Mexico. He had thought it small, miserable, cramped. But out here in the wilderness, thousands and thousands of miles away, it came back to his vision, glorified. A swelling came into his throat. He tried to cough it up. But as long as he thought of the mountain, the thickness stuck in his throat. He took from his pocket a treasure of cake of tobacco and with strong teeth tore off a generous portion. Then he rose and walked off to the corral.

Gerry sat on alone. Thoughts were troubling him, too. What was he doing here? Who was this Margarita that had twisted herself into his life? Was it his life? And her little boy—black-haired, black-eyed, olive-tinted—was his boy, too. He was Gerry Lansing's son. No, not that—not Gerry Lansing's. Gerry Lansing belonged to a time that was far away, to a hill where white houses with green blinds peered out from the darkness of domed maples, from the long shadows of up-pointing firs and from the eaves of faring elms, the wine-cups of heaven. A sigh came quivering through all his body and escaped from his trembling lips. "I am alone," he breathed to himself.

A Simple Way To Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single grain and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

How to Heal Skin-Diseases

A Baltimore doctor suggests this simple, but reliable and inexpensive, home treatment for people suffering with eczema, ring worm, rashes and similar itching, burning skin troubles.

At any reliable druggist's get a jar of resinol ointment and a cake of resinol soap. These are not at all expensive. With the resinol soap and warm water bathe the affected parts thoroughly, until they are free from crusts and the skin is softened. Dry very gently, spread on a thin layer of the resinol ointment, and cover with a light bandage—if necessary to protect the clothing. This should be done twice a day. Usually the itching and burning stop with the first treatment, and the skin soon becomes clear and healthy again.

Almost any soap will clean the skin and hair. But those who want a soap which not only cleanses but actually helps the complexion and hair are wise to choose resinol soap.

Says Fruitola and Traxo Possesses All the Merit That Is Claimed for It.

After completing the necessary treatment, Mrs. S. S. Cole, Lampasas, Texas, was so well pleased with the results that she wrote the Pinus laboratories as follows: "Fruitola and Traxo are all you claim. It removed a quantity of gall-stones and I feel sure it saved my life. I am well now and thankful to you for the great good your medicine has done me."

Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs and one dose is usually sufficient to clearly demonstrate its efficacy. It softens the congested masses, disintegrates the hardened particles that occasion so much suffering and expels the accumulated waste to the great relief of the patient. Following a dose of Fruitola, Traxo should be taken three or four times a day in order to rebuild and restore the system that has become weakened and run down from constant suffering. It is a splendid tonic, acting on the liver and stomach most beneficially.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Janesville they can be obtained at J. P. Baker, 123 W. Milwaukee St.

deprived of my valuable services after my present terms expires."

"George, dear," she murmured softly, with the love light shining in her eyes, "do you know that this is leap year?"

"Yes, I do," replied George, "and if you look at me like that again I'm going to leap out of the window."

Dangerous. "What makes Carol so disliked?"

"She got the most votes for being popular."—Chicago News.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr.

Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. They cure the liver at the expense of the teeth. Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "drowsy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10¢ a box, per box. All druggists.

The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

How to Find Opportunities Through Want Ads

—No. 15—

How Want Ads Aid Sales Specialization

Want Ads can secure salesmen and can also secure those persons who would become capable salesmen with a little training. Want Ads also gain openings for salesmen and those who wish to learn salesmanship.

Despite itself, every business house is more or less a school of salesmanship. Therefore, Want Ads may be so employed that they may perform very useful services in the business of selling.

These examples will suggest two of these Want Ad possibilities:

A WANT AD FOR NEW SALES-
SALESMAN WANTED.—PREVIOUS experience not entirely necessary. If you will start for small salary, our expert sales manager will help you become accomplished. Write in plain, concise, businesslike manner, especially as to character. State age, address.

A WANT AD FOR OPENING FOR A SALESMAN.
SALES POSITION WANTED ON road or in city to call on trade. Small salary will do if you will aid me in progressing. I have good education, pleasing address, and some experience. Can furnish best of references. Address.

All Business is Based on Continued Experience

Business of all kinds is governed by conditions that vary. There is no set rule in many things, and particularly in salesmanship.

If you employ salesmen, you must train even the experienced. If you are a salesman, you must learn every new line you tackle.

For employer and employee,

The Want Ad

Is the Clearing House of Salesmanship!

THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.

Motto for this week: So long as the earth endureth the morality, doctrine and precepts of the bible shall continue among men.—William Leach.

First Quarter: Lesson XI: Acts VII: 54-VIII: 1-3; March 5, 1916.

THE DEATH OF STEPHEN.

The synagogue was a bridge connecting the Hebrews from the altar to the law—from ceremonialism to scholasticism. In it the teacher eclipsed the priest. It had its rise in the renaissance of the Bible under Ezra. The multitude of synagogues can be accounted for by the fact that the rule hypothetically required one for every ten Jews. It is true, there was an order of worship (largely congregational), but chief stress was placed upon an exposition of the law and the prophets. There was almost the freedom of a modern Bible-class.

Each synagogue had its rulers, minister, and alms-collectors. It had disciplinary powers also, could scourge, suspend, excommunicate. The apostles, obedient to the Lord's command to preach to the Jew first, availed themselves of the synagogues of Palestine and the Dispersion for this purpose. As it was said of Paul in Damascus, so it might be said of the apostles everywhere. "And straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues that he is the Son of God." For this they suffered all the pains and penalties the synagogue could inflict. Stephen—as his name signifies, "the crown," the shining ornament of the diocese as well as of the martyrology—found time to preach after he had served tables in his administrative function. He was full of faith and power. He spoke with wisdom and spirit. There were miracles attendant. Disciples multiplied. A new era was made in the ranks of ecclesiasticism by the great company of priests who became obedient to the faith. Something must be done to shore up the imperiled "establishment." The master wranglers of five synagogues conspired against this fearless antagonist. They set a dialectical gin for him. They chuckle over their fancied victory. They will spoil his popularity by forcing him to speak some word against Moses or the law. They have a dilemma ready-made for him. But he has counted without their host. He bears them down with an invincible logic that they are not able to resist. There is the recourse of arrant cowardice. If they cannot match his brains, they can at least match them. This they accomplish by the same foul means they employed against his Master—the instrument still to be found in the lobby of the Oriental court, the hired witness. Stephen's defense afforded a sample of his style. He epitomizes Hebrew history. He shows it a series of evolutions: from Chaldea to Canaan under Abraham, from Canaan to Egypt under Joseph, from Egypt to Canaan under Moses, from the tabernacle to the temple under Solomon. He was not allowed to announce his conclusion, but the trend of his logic is unmistakable. The next transition to be affirmed was that from the temple to the Church under Jesus. Like his Master, his judgment (fair trial) is taken from him. The court becomes a mob. There is an onrush, with gashing of teeth. One heady vision is granted to hasten the doomed confessor, as—

"The sky
Flew open to his fainting eye,
Which, like a fading lamp, flashed high.

Seeing what death conceals.

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN

A cool conservatism may calculate that if Stephen had been more prudent, he might have lived longer. In a sense, he never died. His influence is immortal. He survives as an inspirational force to this day. He unconsciously, but none the less, acted and reacted into the character and career of a young man standing near as an official witness of his execution. "Hail Stephen!" prayed, Paul had not prophesied him an exceptionally able speaker. Come out and hear him.

CLAIM SUPERVISING TEACHERS A SUCCESS

Inspection of Rural Schools by Competent Teachers Achieves Notable Results. (Special to the Gazette.) Madison, Wis., March 3.—That the law passed by the 1915 legislature providing for the employment of supervising teachers for rural schools is more than proving the benefits claimed for it by its sponsors is indicated by the experience of the workers already in the field. Aside from the immediate improvement of the schools, the new law means up a field of investigation and report that must in the end be of lasting benefit. Interesting information in regard to the working of the law is found in the special surveying teachers number of the Educational News Bulletin, a publication issued by the office of the state superintendent of schools. The law went into effect late in the summer of 1915 in secure of the necessity of organization not much in the way of results, was expected for that year. Before the arrival of the Christmas holidays, however, eighty-one supervising teachers had begun their work in different sections of the state. Question blanks were sent by Supt. Cary to these teachers to find out what work had been accomplished.

CLAIM SUPERVISING TEACHERS A SUCCESS

Inspection of Rural Schools by Competent Teachers Achieves Notable Results. (Special to the Gazette.) Madison, Wis., March 3.—That the law passed by the 1915 legislature providing for the employment of supervising teachers for rural schools is more than proving the benefits claimed for it by its sponsors is indicated by the experience of the workers already in the field. Aside from the immediate improvement of the schools, the new law means up a field of investigation and report that must in the end be of lasting benefit. Interesting information in regard to the working of the law is found in the special surveying teachers number of the Educational News Bulletin, a publication issued by the office of the state superintendent of schools. The law went into effect late in the summer of 1915 in secure of the necessity of organization not much in the way of results, was expected for that year. Before the arrival of the Christmas holidays, however, eighty-one supervising teachers had begun their work in different sections of the state. Question blanks were sent by Supt. Cary to these teachers to find out what work had been accomplished.

Many counties reported interesting methods and results which could not be reduced to figures," the News Bulletin says. "All replies, however, gave statistical information as to the schools visited. All of the reports were encouraging. Some of the results showed excellent work on the part of supervising teachers, while others showed opportunity for further improvement.

Seven of the teachers had visited 100 per cent of the schools in their districts; five had visited 90 to 99 per cent; three had visited 80 to 89 per cent; fourteen from 70 to 79 per cent; ten from 60 to 69 per cent; nine from 50 to 59 per cent; eleven from 40 to 49 per cent; eleven from 30 to 39 per cent; two from one to 29 per cent.

A total of 8,634 schools had been visited. Forty per cent, or 1,492, were visited for half a day or less; 1,765, or 48 per cent, for a full day; 355, or 10 per cent, for two or three days; 82, or 2 per cent, for more than two days.

Much correspondence has been received at the office of Supt. Cary concerning the work of the supervising teachers and from other states where the work is being watched. There are many letters from young teachers, who say that their work has been made easier and that they have learned much by the visits of older teachers.

At a recent meeting of county superintendents in Madison the new law was voted on and it was predicted that the supervising teacher would do more for the rural schools than any one factor established in the past. Supt. Cary is giving much time to the establishing of the new system.

SIXTEEN NATIONS WILL TAKE PART IN SAN DIEGO EXPOSITION THE 2ND YEAR

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) San Diego, Cal., March 3.—Sixteen nations are participating in the big second year of the San Diego Panama-California International exposition, which will be formally opened by President Davidson and that of this month.

When the 1915 exposition closed December 31 it had established a world record for exhibitions by remaining open an entire year. The first day of the new year found the gates still open, and President G. A. Davidson announced to a New Year's day crowd of 20,000 that a new international exposition would be built on the 1916 success. This will establish a new world record for exposition operation which, it is believed, will stand for many years as a record.

Among the greatest of these exhibits are those of the United States government, Canada, France, Brazil, The Netherlands and Germany. The wonderful Canadian display shown at San Francisco is being installed in the Commerce and Industries building, which will be known in 1916 as the California building.

The United States government is represented by 17,000 square feet of display, housed in three buildings. A thousand S. Marines, a battalion of U. S. Infantry, a part of the First U. S. Cavalry, and several government bands will be on the grounds before dedication day.

France opened the famous Luxembourg collection of 80 paintings to the public in the Fine Arts building February 12 and other exhibits of the French republic are being installed in the California building.

The isthmus, the "tur-lined" jet street, is being completely reorganized and will contain a score of new attractions before March 15. It is planned to change the make-up of attractions each month.

Along with a comprehensive program of special events, a dozen great bands are being engaged for 1916, including Russia, Italy, Philippine and South American. The strolling Spanish singers and dancers which added to the Spanish effect of the architecture, the patios and plazas, have made their appearance on the grounds and are to be a daily feature here all year.

An automobile demonstration field where every test to which motors and motor vehicle can be put is an added feature and the special events offered here daily promises to be the most sensational ever offered by transportation vehicles. A special effort is being made to have President Woodrow Wilson present at the dedication.

FOREIGN SHIPS COME UNDER SEAMEN'S LAW NOW

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.) Washington, March 3.—Foreign ships tomorrow will be placed on the footing of American ships as respects personnel of crew, rights of individual seamen and safety appliances. The Lafollette seamen bill goes into effect as to non-American ships.

The power of the United States to refuse clearance papers to such vessels as do not conform to the requirements of the law is ordered invoked by the terms of the bill. Enforcement is in the hands of the Department of Commerce. Hereafter, foreign as well as American vessels must live up to these requirements.

No more passengers shall be carried than can be accommodated by the life-boats and life-rafts. Seventy-five per cent of the crew must be able to understand the orders of the officers. Forty per cent must be able seamen—at least 19 years old and with three years experience, except as they are qualified by special examination conducted by the Department of Commerce.

A sailor may leave his ship in port at will; and the provision of treaties and other international agreements that officers of United States must aid in searching for him as a deserter and returning him to his vessel is repealed. He can collect, however, but a fractional part of his wages if he quits this way.

Senator Lafollette, author of the bill, claims the result of its going into effect as to foreign vessels will be to raise wages for seamen the world over, and to remove the high labor cost handicap of American operators. Sailors shipped in Liverpool, for instance, at a wage of $12 to $15 a month will be within their legal rights in quitting their ship in New York and refusing to re-ship except at the higher rate of American wages. Already, says Lafollette, the seamen's union is spreading this information among its men, and the ship-owners are considering methods of fighting it. The bill has been in effect as to American ships since Nov. 4, 1915.
